BIM - Building Information Modelling. It is a digital process that involves creating and managing all the physical and functional information of a building or infrastructure project throughout its lifecycle — from planning, design, construction, operation, to maintenance. Key Features of BIM 3D Modeling - Information-Rich Models - Collaboration - Life cycle Management Uses of BIM Design visualization (3D walkthroughs, simulations) Clash detection (identifying design conflicts before construction) Quantity take-off & cost estimation Scheduling (4D BIM) – integrates time with the model Facility management (6D BIM) – includes operational data Sustainability analysis (Green BIM)
